CUTTING FRAY

On Wednesday evening, during an altercation between Grats Neil of the Bullpate and William Echard of Jackson River, the latter received a knife wound in his right arm. Neil was apprehended by officers on the mountain east of town, brought back and lodged in jail all morning. When brought before Mayor Colaw, preliminary trial was waived, and he was released on bail commission O. Wilson, the bond being fixed at $1,000.

Echard's wounds were dressed by Dr. Trimble, and he is getting along as well as could be expected.

WESTER CITY IOWA

Sept. 6, 1914

Editor Recorder:—I have read the adv. in your paper favoring local option, and as Virginia is my native state I wish to ask a few questions: first, if there is more liquor sold under Prohibition than under local option, why fight Prohibition? second, how many homes in Highland County have been ruined and wrecked by the liquor traffic? third, how many in your County sleep in drunkards' graves? I ask you, Fathers and Mothers, how many boys have you to give up to this damnable curse?

If there is a single redeeming feature about the liquor traffic I have failed to discover it. In Iowa we have been licensing saloons and using the money to build and maintain inebriate asylums, and when they were filled we tried to place the rest in our lunatic asylums, but the inmates object to being penned up with inebriates, so we are getting rid of the curse as fast as we can. The same howl is set up everywhere about taxes being increased—you have heard of that before. Statistics prove for every dollar derived from the sale of liquor it costs us sixteen in prosecuting the crime growing out of the traffic, and taxpayers pay the difference. Webster City is a dry town now, or I would not be writing here, and we get along admirably without any saloon license tax. They tell you Prohibition does not prohibit. Come to our city and see. If our police ever discover a drunken man, he is locked up and fined, and he seldom comes back.

In conclusion let me tell you, all this Local Option, Self Government, and high taxes argument is nothing but the dying wail of King Barleycorn, and God speed the day.

Death of Child

Myrtle Etta, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther L. Rexrode of the Hightown community, died on Aug. 31, 1914, aged twenty-three days.

The little one just came into the home, entwined the hearts of her parents about her, and then went back to God, may we not believe, to make the beautiful home home beyond the sky more precious to the dear ones.

After appropriate services at the home, conducted by Rev. L. L. Lowance, the remains were laid to rest in the cemetery near Henry Hevener's.

The little white casket was carried by four little girls, Magie Snyder, Mildred Waybright, Lucy and Edna Hevener, and was followed by a beautiful floral tribute carried by Cora, Marie, Jennie and Glad Hevener.

What was supposed to be another appearance of the army worm was reported last week from the Big Valley. Dr. Fox, the government entomologist who had been here for a month making a study and investigation of the army worm, gathering data etc. was notified, and he made a trip down there to see. The worm, he said, proved to be something on the centipede order and not the army worm, and he assured farmers that they need not be apprehensive as this last variety was more or less carnivorous and would do no harm to grass or vegetation of any sort.

Dr. Fox left for the Hot Springs on Friday, but before leaving assured himself and all concerned that, in his judgment, there would be no re-appearance of the army worm in Highland this fall, the weather conditions being unfavorable.

In a recent issue of the Washington (D. C.) Herald, the death of William H. Hammer, a contractor, is announced, and the sketch of his life connects him with a well-known West Va. family. His mother, being a Harper of Pendleton county. Mr. Hammer went to Washington the year after the war, and in 1861 married Nellie Dolly of Clinton county. The notice may be of interest to some of our Pendleton readers.

Obituary

The sad death of Miss Lona, daughter of Morgan and Sarah Macom, came the 11 of August. She was a sufferer for about three years, and bore her suffering with much patience. She was a good, kind girl, loved by all who knew her. Her age was 33 years. She was laid in the McKendree cemetery to await the resurrection. She leaves a loving mother, three brothers and three sisters and a host of friends to mourn her loss. May God be with them.

STOCK SHOW

Coming to the busy, distracting week, the Recorder is a day late and only time enough to say that the 5th annual Live Stock Show, opening on Tuesday and closing Thursday, was in every way a success. The aim of the promoters was more nearly realized, the home live stock exhibit being very creditable and far ahead of any previous year. Some of the best stock in Highland has been put on exhibition and the advertising will result in good to the county.

An early morning rain kept many away on Tuesday, but the afternoon was all the more enjoyable, the dust being laid. Wednesday saw the banner attendance, it being fully up to the average big days of previous seasons. The third day brought a good attendance, also, and the programme was better than in former years.

Among those from a distance who helped to make up the ring classes were Messrs. Taylor and Darnell of Staunton, Johnston, Gay, McLaughlin, Barlow and Burns of West Virginia.

The county made a splendid showing in riding and driving classes.

All were proud of the agricultural exhibit, and that of the ladies fancy-work and culinary departments proved a success beyond the expectation of the ladies themselves, and was most creditable and praiseworthy.

The nights were very cool and the dust something bad, but, on the whole, weather conditions were favorable.

There were no accidents, and virtually no disorder on the grounds.

The awards will be published in our next issue.

Prizes will be paid as soon as books are checked up, and checks will be mailed to the prize winners.
